SEARCH MADE FOR VICTIMS OF "APE MAN"

Father of Man Suspected of Crimes Talks Freely

Los Angeles, Sept. 17.—(AP)—An amazing story of torture and the murders of five boys was before Los Angeles police today as they renewed search on the George Cyrus Northcott "murder farm" near Riverside for graves of the supposed victims.

Questioned for two days regarding the reported killings, the elder Northcott, held in custody here, finally opened up last night, police said, and "talking like a streak" unfolded a gruesome account of some of the acts of his son, whom he described in appearance as resembling an ape.

Following sensation after sensation unfolded in his vivid story the elder Northcott early today led police to the garage on the small ranch near Riverside, and search for the corpses of three of the supposed victims was begun under a concrete floor.

To Issue Warrants
Riverside authorities have announced complaints charging murder will be filed against young Northcott and his mother, Mrs. Louise Northcott, whom the father said was the only person having any control over the youth, and who is believed to have been an accomplice in the suspected murders.

The elder Northcott told the police that his son and grandson, Sanford Clark, 15, now held by the authorities, had told him of the murders, but that he did not believe their stories.

First reports of the "murder farm" were given police by young Clark following his arrest for Canadian immigration authorities. He and young Northcott had forced him to aid in one of the slayings. Four of the victims, he said, were young boys kidnapped in suburbs of Los Angeles in the past few months, and held and abused at the farm before they were put to death.

Father Adds Fifth

Account of a fifth murder was added by the father of the suspect in his rambling story. It was reported to have occurred in a miner's cabin where Northcott and his son were reported to have slain another miner. Finding that a boy had witnessed the killing Northcott seized him and he was taken to the farm where a few days later he was put to death.

The father described his son as an "ape man" over whom only an indulgent mother had any control.

While Riverside investigators yesterday scoured the Northcott farm in search of the bodies of three boys and a Mexican man, whom Clark said young Northcott had slain, one miner uncovered a half dozen bones, still linked by flesh and skin, and a toe nail believed from the foot of a ten year old boy. All were taken to Los Angeles laboratories for examination.

Think Bodies Removed

This was the first direct evidence that either Northcott or Clark's stories might be substantiated, though it was at first reported three open graves had been found in a chicken yard on the farm. Officers believed bones had been removed from these graves hurriedly, and destroyed, probably by fire or lime.

Some doubt was cast on Clark's story here by the father of Lewis and Nelson Winslow, two of the reported victims, who believed his sons were alive, and had been seen in Texas after the date fixed by Clark of their deaths. Officers also reported Walter Collins, a third reported victim, was alive and back in Los Angeles, although his mother refused to acknowledge the boy as her son.

Young Collins was kidnapped last April and a boy said to be the same youth returned to the mother from DeKalb, Ill., a few weeks ago.

BODIES OF 6 MORE TAKEN FROM DEBRIS

Death Toll of Rockford Tornado Will Likely Be 15

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Recovery of three additional bodies from the debris of chair factory "B" today brought the total of the tornado dead here to 14 and led authorities to believe there might be one more body in the ruins.

The last to be removed were August J. Peterson, Gunnar Ryden and another man first identified as Frank Strom. The coroner's office, however, reported the body was not that of Strom and search of the wreckage was renewed. The injured in the hospital were reported on their way to recovery and it was believed the total dead would reach 15.

Three bodies were taken out during the night. Hampered by crowds of curious who took advantage of the Sunday holiday to visit the scenes of the storm destruction, rescue workers nevertheless made appreciable progress. Tractors, steam shovels, and abundant manpower combined to get to the bottom of bricks, timbers and tangled steel on those factory properties against which the storm shot its greatest force.

The roofings of hundreds of homes and the repairing of factories that were damaged but not destroyed, gave employment to many. Others, out of employment by reason of the destruction of factories, found months of work ahead of them in an extensive rebuilding program to which the Chamber of Commerce has put its energies.

A meeting has been called to appraise the damage which now is conservatively estimated at $2,000,000. A plan is being formulated to aid individuals and factory owners in financing rebuilding.

STRANGE STORY OF DEATHS OF THREE IN IND.

Two Men and Woman Die in Murders and Suicide

Evansville, Ind., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Police today attempted to piece together loose ends of an attempted holdup in which two men were fatally shot last Friday night. W. O. Bonannon, 47, prominent Evansville attorney, was found dying from two bullet wounds in front of his home Friday night, and Frank Mills, 19, of Detroit was found dead in a field near here Saturday morning.

Frank Paisley, 24, of Essex, Mo., pal of Mills, who was arrested Saturday as he viewed Mills' body in a local morgue said that Bonannon shot Mills when the two youths came upon the attorney and a woman companion in a parked automobile in the country. Paisley said Bonannon, he confessed, "because he got my buddy."

Another possible angle of the mystery developed last night when Miss Norma Fugert, 21, Bonannon's burn-haired stenographer committed suicide by drinking poison at her home. The girl's mother said her daughter returned home about 9 o'clock Friday night. This was fifteen minutes after Bonannon was found by his wife in front of their home, seated at the wheel of his automobile.

Paisley's story to police related how Bonannon made a break for a gun while Mills, a former pugilist, was attempting to tie him up. The double shooting followed then, fatally wounded, Bonannon drove his automobile through a corn field, across the fields to a road and five miles back to Evansville. Found by his wife, Bonannon gasped that he had been shot by holdupmen, and never again regained consciousness. He died Saturday.

Disapproval of the reduced wage scale was manifested in what group leaders of the miners here termed a walkout, but operators discounted the seriousness of the situation. They asserted that a relatively small number of men had left the pits, although complete reports were not yet available at noon today.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Several hundred miners in the Peoria district, protesting against the new wage agreement, followed the course of miners in the Springfield coal fields and refused to return to work today.

Disapproval of the reduced wage scale was manifested in what group leaders of the miners here termed a walkout, but operators discounted the seriousness of the situation. ### Auto Accident Here Resulted in Arrest

Alvin Madison of this city was fined $200 and costs by Justice J. O. Shaulis in police court last evening on a charge of driving an automobile while in an intoxicated condition. Failure to pay the fine resulted in his being remanded to the county jail.

Madison was arrested by Officer Harry Jones at 8:30 Sunday morning, following an automobile crash at the corner of Dixon avenue and Second street when the Ford roadster which he was driving, crashed into an Oldsmobile sedan driven by Victor Boies of Ottawa. The roadster was the property of John Chancey of this city, who had loaned it to Madison.

A bottle of liquor was found in the car by the police who were called following the crash. None of the parties were seriously injured.

Canada Powerless to Prevent Booze Cargo

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 17.—(AP)—His department is powerless to prevent the export of liquor from local docks to the United States in the opinion of William D. Butler, Minister of the Department of National Revenue.

"I have no authority to stop this business," the Minister said on an inspection trip here to investigate the local situation. "I am not a policeman. I am in charge of the collection of national revenue. How is it possible for my department, as the law now stands, to make any distinction between liquor and other free commodity of international trade?"

While Police Claim to Know Names of Band of Extortionists

Chicago, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The names of all the members of the band of kidnapers who abducted ten-year-old Billy Ranieri twelve days ago and are holding him for a $60,000 ransom are known to the police, they announced today, and three of the men already are in custody.

The announcement came while the boy's father, A. Frank Ranieri, Italian sewer contractor, and other members of the family were fearfully waiting for delivery of a "little package," mindful of the threat of the abductors yesterday to decapitate the boy and mail the head to the parents.

The three men under arrest, the police said, and three others whose names the police said they knew but did not reveal, constitute the band that has held the boy for nearly two weeks, sending daily threats to the family, the latest arriving today in the form of a special delivery letter purporting to be and final demand of the abductors.

Those named by the police were Salvatore Mastroianni and Renoldo "The Skid" Schiedo, who have been formally charged with the kidnapping, and Angelo Pettit, alleged professional extortionist. The arrest of the other members of the band and recovery of the boy alive and well is expected, the police intimated.

Illinois Miners Back on the Jobs

Herrin, Ill., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Mine whistles, some of which had been silent seventeen months, gladdened the hearts of Herrin miners and business men today.

Automobiles filled with miners and men walking to work with dinner pails under their arms presented a scene of activity not seen here for many months.

Number seven mine of the Consolidated Coal Company, idle since expiration of the Jacksonville agreement, April 1, 1927, hoisted coal today under the reduced wage scale recently adopted. This mine normally employs 600 men, but due to the long suspension only about half this number worked today.

Mine A of the C. W. & F. Coal Co. and the Bobby Dick mine of the Freeman Coal Mining Co. also started work. The former employs about 725 men and the latter between 600 and 700.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 17.—(AP)—More than 600 miners of the Capitol mine here refused to go to work this morning. It is presumed that their reason was the decrease in wages which would have gone into effect this morning.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Several hundred miners in the Peoria district, protesting against the new wage agreement, followed the course of miners in the Springfield coal fields and refused to return to work today.

Disapproval of the reduced wage scale was manifested in what group leaders of the miners here termed a walkout, but operators discounted the seriousness of the situation. ### FLORIDA EAST COAST SWEEP BY HIGH WIND

Communication Along Coast Out; Little Data Reported

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Gifford Grange, local radio amateur, today received the following message from station 4-AFC, Palm Beach amateur:

"Loss of life at this time undetermined. Doctors and X X X needed to cope with situation which we believe after careful survey may surpass Miami disaster. Local chapter's fund totally lost by closing banks last year. Immediate action is necessary."

Grange's message, he said, was signed "D. H. Conklin," which is the name of the publisher of the Palm Beach Post.

It stated the Red Cross had made a temporary hospital in the Pennsylvania Hotel because the hospital there had been partially destroyed.

Another message stating that two persons had been killed and fifty injured was picked up by station 4BN at Tampa. The message also stated that many buildings in the business district of West Palm Beach were damaged.

Meanwhile, relief parties proceeded into the area from Miami.

Daytona Beach, Fla., Sept. 17.—(AP)—A story of destructive force, hundreds of minor injuries and paralyzed public utilities was brought to Daytona Beach at noon today by two telephone company's employees who drove a light sedan from Palm Beach, the first persons from the storm beleaguered city.

J. H. Hutchinson of Atlanta, inspector, and J. P. Mason, lineman, reported that hardly a single place of business or residence escaped the destructive storm. They said that hundreds of persons with cuts, bruises, broken limbs and more minor injuries were centralized in the telephone office and at all the hotels. Hotel windows were largely blown in, and guests were in the halls. No light, power, gas, or sewers were in operation. The Red Cross local organization is functioning and has established a relief station in the telephone office.

Miami, Fla., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Florida today turned to the administration of relief and a checking up of damages in the section devastated by the West Indian hurricane and to protective measures in places lying within the indicated path of the storm.

Relief units were dispatched to Palm Beach and West Palm Beach which were isolated late yesterday, together with a dozen other communities. Before communication lines went down, meager reports indicated that severe damage may have been inflicted and unofficial wind velocities ranging as high as 125 miles an hour were reported.

No Deaths Reported

No report on possible loss of life had been received early today. Telephone and telegraph lines were reported out north of West Palm Beach as far as Fort Pierce, but the Jupiter radio station, about 20 miles above the Palm Beaches, was said to be working with naval stations below West Palm Beach. Communications were down to Fort Lauderdale.

A preliminary check-up at Fort Lauderdale, which was struck by a wind estimated at 75 miles an hour, said that several houses had been unroofed and power disrupted.

There were no reports of injuries to the inhabitants. The weather bureau believed the storm center passed inland in the vicinity of West Palm Beach, but in the absence of definite passage or trend of the storm, hurricane warnings, however, were out along the west Florida coast which the bureau said the storm "likely will reach not far from Tampa," during today.

Many Citizens Fled

Many of the inhabitants of the lake towns fled for safety to Lakeland, Avon Park and other places in central Florida. Residents from east coast cities joined the caravan after the issuance yesterday of hurricane warnings, and were said to have filled the highways leading across the state.

As plans were made for possible relief work in the storm area Senator

Story of Tropic Hurricane Told in Brief Paragraphs

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Striking a destructive blow at the Palm Beaches last night after spreading death and devastation through Porto Rico and other islands of the West Indies, the tropical hurricane today was blowing across the Florida peninsula toward the Gulf of Mexico.

Wire communications were down or temporarily disrupted over a wide area along the Florida east coast and in the south central portion.

Reports of casualties and heavy property damage were received from Palm Beach and West Palm Beach via amateur radio operators who picked up messages which they said were signed by station 4AFC, a Palm Beach amateur.

One message, received at Jacksonville by Gifford Grange, licensed operator, stated that an undetermined number of persons had been injured and many homes wrecked.

Grange's message, he said, was signed "D. H. Conklin," which is the name of the publisher of the Palm Beach Post.

It stated the Red Cross had made a temporary hospital in the Pennsylvania Hotel because the hospital there had been partially destroyed.

Another message stating that two persons had been killed and fifty injured was picked up by station 4BN at Tampa. The message also stated that many buildings in the business district of West Palm Beach were damaged.

Victims of "Vamp" Driver Near Dixon

Mr. and Mrs. Calkins of Milledgeville, and a Miss Seaback of Chicago were victims of a "vampire" car accident Sunday morning about 7:30 when the former's car was crowded off the paving on Lord's Hill west of the city and rolled over in a ditch. The other car did not stop but continued on its way.

Miss Seaback sustained a fracture of the collar bone and both Mr. and Mrs. Calkins were unconscious when neighbors residing near the scene of the accident reached them. All three of the parties were taken to the Joshua Hoyle home where a physician was summoned. They were brought to Dixon where their injuries were dressed and later a relative residing near Rockford came to Dixon and took them back to Milledgeville.

Mrs. Calkins sustained several deep cuts about the head and her legs were badly cut from broken glass. Mr. Calkins sustained slight cuts and bruises about the head and body.

Young Bootlegger is Found in Local Park

Lowell Wilson, aged 11 years, was taken into the county court this morning on an information filed by Chief of Police J. D. Van Bibber, and was committed to the St. Charles school for delinquent boys. He was taken in custody about 5:30 last evening, following a report received by police that boys were drinking liquor in Haymarket square.

The boys were taken to the police station where they were questioned and told of purchasing the liquor from young Wilson. He was then taken to the station and admitted selling the bottle of liquor for 50 cents. This offense coupled with numerous other deeds, according to the police led to the filing of the information in the county court this morning.

Half of Population of Island Homeless; Late Report

(BULLETIN)

London, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Twenty-five deaths on the Island of Montserrat during the tropical hurricane were officially reported to the Colonial office today. Fifty persons were injured. All the casualties were among natives.

The island which is about 250 miles southeast of Porto Rico in the direct path of the storm, was hard hit.

(BULLETIN)

San Juan, Porto Rico, Sept. 17.—(AP)—With the hurricane death toll conservatively estimated at 1,000, the spectre of famine stalked through Porto Rico today. At least 300,000 persons were stated to be hungry. Disease was threatened.

Half of the island's population of almost two million was thought to be homeless. It was feared the property damage would pass $100,000,000.

The death list in Porto Rico was increased today with the receipt of reports that at least 29 persons were killed in the town of Comerio.

Frederick Krug, manager of the hydro electric plant at that place reported that the bodies of 22 persons were discovered near the plant by a search party which was seeking the bodies of seven members of one family known to have been washed away in the vicinity. No alarm had previously been felt for the safety of the 22 found. Krug expressed belief that more dead would be found in the neighborhood of Comerio.

Declaration of martial law, requisitioning and rationing of food and drafting of all able-bodied men was urged upon Governor Horacio M. Towner by a group of leading citizens.

The group in a petition asserted that so far neither the government nor any other agency had taken adequate steps for relief to prevent sickness and starvation nor to ascertain the facts as to immediate needs.

Guard Ordered Out

The National Guard has been ordered out to protect property from looters. Efforts were made to stop profiteering.

Nine of the island's 77 towns reported more than 250 dead. Others reported no loss of life and communication with others is

DREADED MEALS WITH STOMACH SO DISORDERED

Tried Remedy After Remedy, But Growing Worse Instead of Better; Gly-Cas Magical.

When this amazing new vegetable compound, Gly-Cas, was first introduced in Dixon at Campbell's White Cross Pharmacy, it was predicted that surprising cases of relief would be accomplished by this preparation right here in this city as had been done in every city and town in which this marvelous remedy had previously been introduced. Now residents of Dixon and all over this section loaded with food and medical supplies and sent to other ports for distribution for relief in the interior.

Four — The army plan followed during the San Quirico hurricane of 1899 he followed, to include drafting of all able-bodied men for employment in public works, on farms, or elsewhere as needed with payment in food from commissary stores.

The petitioners asserted that while all organizations, government officials and employees and citizens generally were ready and eager to co-operate in a plan for relief, they were still awaiting assignment for duty.

Governor Towner urged the Secretary of War to send immediate funds in whatever amount available and more when possible. He asserted the island had suffered the worst hurricane ever recorded in the West Indies and that facts "are worse than have been recorded."

The Governor also urged Presidential approval for a general appeal for aid through the American Red Cross and asked that a Red Cross rehabilitation unit be sent to Porto Rico.

Energetic efforts to stop profiteering in food and supplies were made by Governor Towner.

A careful check on damage resulted in an estimate of $65,000,000 with many items unlisted. These, it was believed, would increase the damage above $100,000,000. Damage to personal property, public buildings such as schools and hospitals, roads, stores and merchandise was not estimated.

BY CATHERINE CAMERON

St. Croix, Virgin Islands, Sept. 17—(AP)—Six persons were known today to have been killed in the tropical hurricane which hit St. Croix Thursday, leaving 3,000 persons homeless. One hundred persons were injured. All the casualties were native negroes.

In the chief commercial centers of Christiansted and Frederiksted the damage was estimated at $400,000. The loss throughout the island has not been learned but it probably was very great. It was the worst hurricane that ever struck the islands.

Villages were razed. Several large estates were wiped out and planters' houses destroyed. Sugar factories were damaged and the sugar crop destroyed.

Boats in the harbor of Christiansted were either sunk or driven ashore. The cable, radio, telephone and light plants were put out of commission.

Food supplies were thought to be adequate today.

The storm raged for twelve hours during which the wind reached a velocity of from 80 to 100 miles an hour. A torrential rain continued for 48 hours increasing the distress of the inhabitants.

NOTICE.

Dr. S. W. Lehman will be in Chicago for two or three days, beginning Wednesday, Sept. 19th.

FLORIDA EAST COAST SWEEP BY HIGH WIND

Joe Robinson, Democratic nominee for Vice President, temporarily abandoned his political campaign, and offered to go personally into the district to aid in the work. He proffered the use of his private car and of a Pullman occupied by newspaper men who are accompanying him.

Senator Robinson came here last night for a speaking engagement to-night, but the address may be postponed or cancelled in the event he goes to the storm area.

The message was signed "D. H. Conkling." That is the name of the publisher of the Palm Beach Post, an Associated Press member newspaper. The message was addressed to The Associated Press and Grange said it was transmitted by station 4AFC, a Palm Beach amateur radio.

The hospital was partially destroyed, the message continued, and the Red Cross set up a temporary hospital in the Pennsylvania hotel there.

"Aid not officially asked for in this message, but believed needed," the message said. It said that estimates of damage were not possible.

Grange, who is credited with having obtained the first message from the Miami hurricane area in 1926 and was commended by the Navy Department for his services, said the message today was being transmitted to an amateur station at Tavares for re-transmission to New Orleans. Signals of the Palm Beach set, evidently operated on batteries, were weak, he said, and Tavares may not have received the message, which was being repeated over and over.

No Wire Service

There was no wire service of any kind into either West Palm Beach or Palm Beach today, the lines having gone down shortly after the hurricane struck the cities. Relief forces were dispatched from Miami today following unconfirmed reports of casualties. Miami, however, was isolated from wire communications and if couriers have returned from the hurricane area, no report has reached the outside world.

North of West Palm Beach the lack of communications extended to Melbourne, more than one hundred miles, while conditions south were not known owing to the failure of the wire into Miami.

SIR KNIGHTS, ATTENTION.

There will be a scramble supper for all Knights Templars and their ladies Tuesday evening, Sept. 18th, after which will be a business meeting for men and cards for the ladies.

damaging it to a considerable extent and then drove away and parked at another place. He was fined $10 and costs for failure to report the accident when taken before Justice J. O. Shaulis and also agreed to repair the Dietz car.

MANY ON EXCURSION

The "Back Home" excursion over the Chicago &amp; North Western yesterday was a decided success. The train was composed of twelve coaches and all were filled. Three hundred and forty tickets were sold at Chicago, and the train picked up passengers all along the route. Eighty-nine persons came to Dixon. DeKalb had sixty. A large number left the train at Sterling. Sixty Dixon automobiles were at the depot in the morning to take care of the people who came to Dixon to visit friends and relatives.

THE STREAM'S SONG

Make way, make way,
You thwarting stones;
Room for my play,
Serious ones.

Do you not fear,
O rocks and boulders,
To feel my laughter
On your grave boulders?

Do you not know
My joy at length
Will all wear out
Your solemn strength?

You will not for ever
Cumber my play;
With joy and a song
I clear my way.

Your faith of rock
Shall yield to me
And be carried away
By the song of my glee.

Crumble, crumble,
Voiceless things;
No faith can last
That never sings.

Yet for a while
Thwart me, O boulders;
I need for laughter
Your serious shoulders.

And when my singing
Has razed you quite,
I shall have lost
Half my delight.
—Lasselle Abercrombie, in The Daily Express.

MENU for the FAMILY

BREAKFAST — Apples, cereal cooked with dates, cream, eggs in nests, extra toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Casserole of carrots and potatoes, cold boiled tongue, ryebread, baked peaches, milk tea.

DINNER — Corned beef, potatoes in parsley butter, creamed kohlrabi, sliced tomatoes with shredded lettuce, huckleberry pudding, milk, coffee.

A good cut of corned beef is good in more ways than one. Sliced cold, minced with a tart dressing, pressed with vegetables or hot corned beef, it lends itself to appetizing meals.

Casserole of Carrots and Potatoes
Two cups diced raw potatoes, 2 cups diced raw carrots, 1 onion, 4 tablespoons butter or bacon fat, 1-2 teaspoon salt, boiling water.

Melt 2 table-spoons butter in baking dish. Add onion peeled and cut in thin slices. Put into a hot oven for a few minutes. Add potatoes, carrots and salt and stir well. Add enough boiling water to come just to the top of the vegetables. Cover and cook in a moderate oven about one hour. Uncover, add remaining butter and brown on top. Serve from baking dish. The water should be cooked away and the vegetables tender.

POINTERS FOR PARENTS

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Parents must stand together. When fathers and mothers disagree in matters touching the lives of their children, the result is confusion, and the objectives of neither parent are attained.

In a certain home the parents differed radically in their attitudes toward schooling. The mother had sent the children to a modern school. The father thought new fangled education ideas were all nonsense. He frequently voiced his disapproval of his wife's choice over the breakfast table, in the presence of the youngsters. Being accustomed to respect the opinions of both parents, they were bewildered. Their enthusiasm for school was dampened.

When lessons were not done it was a fine excuse to say that school was no good anyway. Their interest in their studies and their wholehearted participation in school life suffered as a result of the conflict at home.

One mother exacted strict obedience of her little daughter. Her father on the other hand always pleaded for lenience. Occasionally the mother gave way to this pressure. The child could never be sure that disapproval and punishment would always follow her transgressions. She knew that it depended on whether it was father or mother who was in the more assertive mood.

The evil effects of such cross purposes are apparent. Differences among parents are reflected in the confusion of the child. How shall he know what is worthwhile and what is foolish, what is right and what is wrong? To put this burden of decision on the young child is most unfair. For during his early years he needs nothing so much as the assurance that his parents know what is right. If they disagree among themselves the child's world becomes a wilderness.

Parents, being human, are bound to differ now and then in their ideas of what is wise for their children. Certainly these differences are worthy of discussion. But parents must thresh them out in private until they are ready to enter upon a course of action that looks consistent and harmonious to the child.

MOTORED TO ROCKFORD SUNDAY

Dr. and Mrs. W. A. McNichols and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shaw motored to Rockford Sunday.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SLOVER

The man next door has given up what his wife describes as "a perfectly good job," because, as he puts it, he "wasn't working up to capacity." To which his wife makes gay retort, "the more fool you! If you could draw the salary you did by not 'working up to capacity,' where could you be any better off? Just try finding another job where you can report at 10 and get away to golf at 4 every afternoon!"

Which, as the man explains to those who will listen and try to understand, is exactly why he threw up the sponge. He wasn't old enough for a soft job. He tells them. Men who amounted to anything had to build through their jobs; had to develop and do things; jobs weren't just a matter of bread and butter.

No, the real reason why the man's wife can't understand at all is because she herself long ago stopped "living up to capacity." She just wouldn't "kill herself like Mrs. Jones for anything in the world. Any woman with four children who didn't even have a maid who would try to gad around and entertain people and do things like she does is just plain idiotic."

Now Mrs. Jones is one of these delightful people who more than live up to fullest capacity. The Joneses haven't a tenth the income of their neighbors, but they have more fun than anybody on the street. When nobody else could see anything in the oldest house on the street which was for sale, the Joneses bought it, painted it, bringing out all the beauty of its hundred-year-old architecture of Doric-columned porch, smoothed the vast lawn into a green carpet, made a fetching sundial, little flagstoned walks, and even built a rough stone outdoor fireplace under a big elm tree, where outdoor suppers are prepared. The Joneses always have a gang around—Helen Jones' college friends or a bunch of girls from the newspaper office where she worked before her marriage. Bill Jones is always bringing out a gang in that back yard morning, noon and night.

Helen Jones never makes a fuss about anything. If she doesn't have time to get a married before her garden party, she just doesn't. If supper isn't ready when the guests arrive they help tote out huge yellow bowls of potato salad and platters of cold ham to the garden table.

To be sure, Helen Jones doesn't do much porch-sitting. She says there are too many interesting people to see and talk with for that. She's afraid of being passed by by life if she just stays alone in her pretty garden. Not that there's any chance—she's too interesting a person. People would seek her out in her garden.

The topic—the Gospel of the Red Men, included some opinions on religion by Hiawatha and Blackhawk. The topic "The Institution of the Church in Early Colonial Days," was very interesting.

Mrs. Switzer gave a reading "The Old Church" by Longfellow. Mrs. Hank gave "The Wedding Dress" by Muckenberg.

After a short business session, the meeting closed with the usual prayer. A social period followed and dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses, assisted by Mrs. Walter Smith, Miss Dorothy Atkins and Mary Louise Smith.

Charming Event of Saturday Evening

A charming event of Saturday evening was the buffet bridge supper given at the home of Mrs. George Beier, with Miss Dorothy Palmer and Mrs. Beier as hostesses. The supper and bridge honored Miss Lucille Frye, whose approaching marriage to Allen Harsh of Oregon has been announced. There were guests for five tables of bridge.

The buffet supper was served in the dining room, the color combination used in decorating, lavender and green, was most effective and lovely. The centerpiece for the table was composed of lavender asters and ferns and the lavender tapers were tied with green tulle.

Mrs. Harold Lehman of Sterling was awarded the favor for high honors at bridge; Miss Catherine Wright received the second favor; and Miss Merriam Deveney received the third favor.

All present joined in the happy surprise of the evening, when they presented Miss Frye with a handsome gift of several pieces of linen with their best wishes in advance, for her future happiness.

Several Anniversaries Observed Saturday

Helen Louise Frazier happily celebrated her tenth birthday Saturday afternoon by entertaining twenty-four of her girl friends at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morton H. Frazier, 1024 Cooper street, the day also marking the seventeenth wedding anniversary of the latter, and they also came in for a session of congratulations and well wishing.

Helen's little guests had a delightful afternoon, playing games in which prizes were awarded. The hostess' cousin, Lorraine Frazier won the prize in the peanut hunt; Amy Ackert was successful in the bean guessing contest, and Marion Martin was winner in the potato race.

After their games and contests the guests were summoned into the house to the birthday table, on one end of which stood a big doll, dressed in pink and yellow, holding in her arms a box from which streamers ran to the various plates, little pink and yellow baskets being tied to the outside ends of the streamers. At a given signal each girl pulled the streamer from her basket and drew forth from the doll's box a birthday can which they donned at once, amid much merriment.

A birthday cake, with the requisite ten candles, graced the other end of the table, at which Mrs. Ada Lindgren, Mrs. C. F. Randall and Mrs. Ray Frazier served ice cream and cake. During the happy afternoon the little hostess received many very pretty remembrances of the occasion.

OUR SUPERVISORS.

The fact that the Lee County Treasury had a surplus of funds on hand to the amount of $105,000 and could appropriate the county's half of the cost of the new Dixon bridge without increasing the county taxes is an indication of economy and far-sightedness on the part of the Lee County Board of Supervisors.

The county board gets its share of criticism, as any governing body gets, and The Telegraph is glad to have an opportunity to throw a bouquet this time, instead of a brick. The Lee County Supervisors have demonstrated good business ability and should be congratulated. The willing and unanimous action of the board in appropriating the funds for the Dixon bridge is appreciated by the residents of Dixon.

VOTE FOR HOOVER AND THE PROTECTIVE TARIFF.

Not the least transparent piece of ballyhoo that has gone up from the cohorts of Boss Raskob is that which concerns the alleged conversion of the Democratic Party to the policy of the Protective Tariff.

Just as the Democrats have endeavored to make their wet and dry campaign a double-barreled affair, with Smith to knock the wet vote and Robinson to bag the dries, so did the Houston Convention attempt to camouflage the truth as regards the tariff.

In the same manner, the Democrats have spread fly-paper for voters in the form of the tariff planks in the Houston platform, and in the utterances of some of their leaders in interpretation thereof. Stripped of all ambiguity, however, the tariff planks reveal the same old "competitive tariff" skeleton which has marked every Democratic platform for the last forty years. Skeleton is an accurate word, for on the few occasions that they have been permitted to apply the competitive tariff idea suffering and disaster have followed.

The duplicity of the present attempt to convince the public of a Democratic change of heart, and the soundness of the Republican policy of the Protective Tariff which has brought the United States from its relatively weak position of 70 years ago to its present place of wealth and power, are set forth in a masterly manner in the Republican Tariff Textbook.

The Textbook is a comprehensive review of tariff history in the United States, abounding in statistical and other information concerning the economic position of the United States. Aply, it opens with this quotation from the speech of acceptance of Herbert Hoover:

"The Republican Party has ever been the exponent of protection to all our people from competition with lower standards of living abroad. We have always fought for tariffs designed to establish this protection from imported goods.

"We have pledged ourselves to make such revisions in the tariff laws as may be necessary to provide real protection against the shifting of economic tides in our various industries. I am sure the American people would rather entrust the perfection of the tariff to the consistent friend of the tariff than to our opponents, who have always reduced our tariffs, who voted against our present protection to the worker and the farmer, and whose economic theory over generations has been the destruction of the protective principle."

The French resort of Deauville, announcing a reform, announces that "only adventures of good character" will be allowed to linger there. Girls, if you must be adventures, be good ones.

Do you suppose Tom Mix's noble steed, Tony, enjoyed a quiet horse laugh over the recent Mix-Morrissey mixup?

Add this to your stock of smiles: "As appealing as a golf course to a farmer after a day in the harvest fields."

People should eat the same things every day, says Thomas Edison. In this opinion he is backed by a couple of million boarding house landladies.

A British newspaper is conducting a debate on the question of whether or not a man has a right to open his wife's letters. Seems to us more a question of courage.

A sure sign of autumn is evident when parents count the days until college opens and they can ride in the family car again.

The dog that cleaned up Animal Land, soon made the Tines understand that they must be real neat, and not throw things upon the ground. "I work the live, long day," said he, "and you can be of help to me if you'll just pick up all the scraps, and such things, that are found."

"You bet we will, and gladly, too," said Scouty, "cause we all like you. In fact, I'll lend a hand right now, so you can loaf a while. Just let me take your broom. I can make things around here spic and span." The dog then gave the broom to Scouty, with a friendly smile.

"Then Scouty worked, with interest keen, and soon had things swept nice and clean. The other Tines offered aid, but Scouty answered, 'No! This sweeping job is lots of fun, and now I have the work all done.' The dog said, 'Thanks! I'll tell you lads a real nice place to go.

"Just down the street, not very far, is where three little kittens are. I think you'll like to play with them. They're cute as they can be. They scamper round and fight in fun, and then they jump and quickly run. When you have played with them a while, come back and talk to me."

So, off the little Tines ran, and Clowny said, "I'll bet we can have lots of fun. I always have liked kittens mighty well." They hadn't traveled very far, till Coppy shouted, "There they are! Oh my but they are cute, and, say, just listen to them yell."

"The three small kittens that they found were shedding tears upon the ground. 'My, my!' exclaimed we Clowny, 'just what are you crying for?' 'We've lost our mittens,' one replied. The other two just sat and sighed. Then Scouty said, 'We'll find them, so please don't cry any more.'

(The mittens are found in the next story.)

How Photographers Advertise The Community

BY FRED HIGH

Last week we discussed the practices that built up the picture business. Now, let us see how important is the part that the local photographer plays in the community and its development.

Some years ago, the writer was author and publisher of a souvenir book for Waynesburg, Pa. This book stands even today as one of the most effective and artistic books of its kind.

The book contained more than 200 pages and was superbly illustrated. It contained wonderfully comprehensive representations of every activity in the community—business, finance, manufacturing, social, educational and religious.

Practically no soliciting was done to sell the book. The main sales force was the town photographer's window, which was used in the following manner.

Old pictures were dug up and placed in the window of this photographer. There was a card saying that the pictures would be used in "Waynesburg, Prosperous and Beautiful," as the souvenir book was called.

After a week's display, these pictures were taken down and other pictures put in the window. Half-tone cuts were made of the pictures taken from the window. Then the half-tone proofs were also displayed as samples of the way the pictures would appear in the book.

This was kept up the whole of the summer, with new pictures every week and the halftones of them the following week—an endless chain of pictures and then the halftones.

There were few minutes of the day that summer that there were not from one to a dozen people standing at that photographer's window, studying the pictures and the illustrations that were on display. Unquestionably, the most interesting place in Waynesburg was the photographer's studio. The book was actually compiled and sold through these pictures.

And what did that souvenir book mean to Waynesburg in a financial way when it was distributed?

Here is an incident that will illustrate its power to persuade. Just at the time the book was distributed there was pending before the legislature of Pennsylvania two bills important to Waynesburg—one for an appropriation of $25,000 for Waynesburg College and another for an appropriation of $25,000 for the Waynesburg hospital.

These bills came up to the closing day of the session. When Senator D. S. Walton and Representative James Rush both from Waynesburg, laid a copy of "Waynesburg, Prosperous and Beautiful" on the desk of each senator and each representative at Harrisburg. There was but an hour left, but so impressed were these halftone illustrations, the art printing, and the story this book carried that these bills were rushed through by unanimous consent less than five minutes before the clock reached the "what might have been fatal hour"—the hour when a session must be adjourned.

A few of the magazines that have carried these Jacksonville articles are The Literary Digest, full page; Saturday Evening Post, half page; Rotary Magazine, four pages; Jacobs Band Magazine, three pages; National Magazine, three pages; Metronome,

It happened that that year the governor of Pennsylvania cut all appropriations for the whole state in half, and thus Waynesburg received $25,000 instead of the $50,000 called for in the bills as passed.

A great reception was given Senator Walton and Representative Rush on their return home. Both stated publicly during the reception that much of the credit for the victory was due to the pictures in that souvenir book.

I published 10,000 of these books. This was 22 years ago. I put this over as a private venture, and as the years roll by, I find increasing evidence that it was one of the most effective pieces of community building in which I have ever had a hand or helped to put over.

Only a few see more in a photograph than a mere bit of sentimentalism. We have a photograph taken when we graduate, when we get married, or when some unusual event takes place. But a photograph is about the last thing we think of as an aid to business or as a community building force.

In the May 1928 issue of the National Magazine of Boston is an article in which the writer says that Ralph M. Bradford, manager of the Corpus Christi, Texas, Chamber of Commerce, and Harold C. Welch, formerly manager of the Chamber of Commerce of Jacksonville, Illinois, should be ranked among the half dozen most efficient and effective Chamber of Commerce managers in the United States. Both of these managers are great friends of the photographer.

The first year Ralph Bradford was with the Corpus Christi Chamber of Commerce he spent $195 for a fine graphex camera. Snap, snap, snap was the order of the day along the Texas east coast. The first picture taken was one of the young lady in the office, holding an armful of grapefruit, and as the young lady was good looking and the grape fruit enticing, even the picture of them made their way to the front page of the largest farm magazine in the Southwest, and before the year was over it had been given more than 25,000,000 circulation through various papers and magazines.

This is but one of the many instances in which Corpus Christi has received, not thousands, but millions of impressions, ranging from a half-column to a full-page story, and all because they had a story and good pictures to go with the story.

I have often been asked how I was able to get so much invaluable publicity for Harold Welch's city, Jacksonville, Illinois. The answer is Jacksonville has two of the liveliest photographic studios that I have found in all my experience, that is, alive to community interests.

two pages, and various articles in other nationally-circulated publications, all of which were made doubly effective by pictures.

Hon. E. E. Crabtree, mayor of Jacksonville, said: "Fred High secured more publicity advertising the advantages of Jacksonville than any one other person." Fred High says "Jacksonville photographers made these stories possible."

In Jacksonville, I was given free range by Speath, Jacksonville photographer. "Take anything you want, and if you do not find what you want, I will go out and take it for you." Contrast this with what happened in a neighboring Illinois town, where the writer also conducted a week's campaign. The local photographer was urged to make every possible effort to secure a good line of pictures of the various events that were set for the week.

One of the special events in that town of 3,200 inhabitants was a barbecue at which 15,000 people consumed 4,000 pounds of beef, and when the beef ran out, 700 pounds of ham were used in the emergency. The local photographer failed to get as much as a snap shot of this and other events of the week. He said "the light was not right."

On one of the evenings the business men staged a big minstrel show. The hour was set for eight p. m. At six p. m. 3,500 were in the auditorium clamoring for the curtain to go up.

A rush order was sent out and the performers hurried back to the scene put on their burnt cork, and started an extra performance at 6:30 p. m. At nine o'clock a second audience of equal size was gathered in the auditorium and the second performance given. And no flash light was made of that crowd or of the stage filled with the local Minstrel Monarchs!

That failure was a community tragedy. Publications that had agreed to use the story of these events would not run the story because there were no illustrations.

A community is greatly blessed that has a good, live photographer, one willing to work, willing to risk a few plates, willing to build his business on the same sound business principles that are the basis of so many successful concerns in various lines of business.

Such a photographer is generously supported.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"MATTER" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, September 16.

The Golden Text was from Psalms 34:14, "Depart from evil, and do good; seek peace, and pursue it."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "I made me great works; I builded me houses; I planted me vineyards; Then I looked on all the works that my hands had wrought, and on the labour that I had laboured to do: and behold all was vanity and vexation of spirit, and there was no profit under the sun. . . . Then I saw that wisdom excelleth folly, as far as light excelleth darkness" (Eccl. 2:4, 11, 13).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "When understanding changes the standpoints of life and intelligence from a material to a spiritual basis, we shall gain the reality of Life, the control of Soul over sense, and we shall perceive Christianity, or Truth, in its divine Principle" (p. 322).

SOUTH CHINA PROMISES TO PROTECT FOREIGNERS

Canton.—(AP)—The provincial bureau of education has officially notified all foreign mission schools in Kwangtung province that the government is taking special measures to guarantee protection for the lives and property of all foreigners.

This is a welcome assurance to American and British missionaries, especially those stationed in county districts far from possible assistance by foreign warships. These missionaries have been almost as busy packing and unpacking trunks as gaining converts during the last three years.

Window shopping through the world

Looking around, comparing, deciding on colors and flavors and textures and designs—"shopping" for many of us is half the fun of buying things and having them. . . . Other people (more scientifically minded) always know exactly what they want, and where they want to buy it.

But before anyone definitely can say "I like that—I'll take it" in order to spend money wisely, some "looking around" must be done.

Looking around by reading the advertisements saves time and trouble and money. For advertisements are the shop windows of a world of manufacturers. You don't need to walk up Fifth Avenue or past the corner drug store to see what So-and-So is offering in the way of silk stockings, or refrigerators, or toothpaste, or automobiles, or schools for young George, or vacations for the whole family.

The advertisements picture, describe, explain the merchandise and the new ideas that are displayed and talked about.

Read the advertisements because it pays YOU to do so.

PUPILS REWARDED FOR HAVING PER- FECT ATTENDANCE

155 Students in Dixon Elementary Schools Get Certificates

Students in the elementary schools of Dixon are awarded a certificate each year for perfect attendance. During the school year of 1927-28 there were 155 in the various buildings from the kindergarten to the eighth grade, who were awarded these certificates. There seems to be a high degree of correlation between good attendance and good school work which accounts for the reason for the encouragement of perfect attendance.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN
Oh, little town of Cherry, what a desolate place you seem.
Where decadence is so prevalent it must be but a dream.
Where the sunshine is the hottest, with its sweltering, torrid ray
Beating mercilessly downward throughout the summer day.

Guarded by two towering mountains, refuse from your mine of coal,
You lie listlessly and waiting for Depression's last patrol.
Many years ago you prospered, a progressive mining town,
But today your hopes are blighted and your lawns are sere and brown.

Skeletons of vacant houses where the happy families dwelt,
Now are crumbling into ruins, for Oppression's power is felt.
Naked rafters bend, no doors nor windows shield the scent within
Of your vacant, little cottages where Opulence has been.

Garden spots also have vanished, and the weeds are stretching tall,
Where the ruby radish flourished and potatoes grew for all.
Just a sprinkling of blossoms brighten up the dreary scene,
While a few bird-songs in stunted trees provoke Depression's mien.

Business boomed and stores were crowded, but when came the fleeting years,
A raging ruin ravaged; joys and hopes were vanquished to tears.
And the doleful tap of hammers made a mournful, sad-sounding sound,
As the doors and windows all were barred and people left the ground.

Nearly nineteen drab November's now have flitted by so fast,
Since that horrifying holocaust when hundreds lived their last;
When they fondly gave a farewell kiss and spoke that kind "Goodbye,"
And five hundred feet below the ground were called upon to die.

Little Cherry, where twelve hundred souls thrived to the song of life,
Where dreary desolation and Death's memory are rife,
What a pity men must idle be and children cry for bread,
When the mine which made your village hearkens not to miners' tread.

May God bless you, cheerless Cherry, in your misery and grief,
And by His great omnipotence soon bring to you relief.
May the many wounds of sorrow which the years have never healed,
Be anointed with His goodness and forever be concealed.
—Bela R. Halderman.

ON NAMING SCHOOL
Editor—After reading your article on the naming of the new high school by Dr. Burr, I think that as Father John Dixon was the first settler and first business man, and his residence being on Peoria ave. at the intersection with Commercial Alley, that we should name the new school The John Dixon Memorial High School.
Respectfully,
R. D. ADAMS.

REAL CIRCUS TO BE FEATURE ILL. WELFARE MEETING

Ringmaster and Clowns Music and Freaks are Planned

A full-fledged miniature circus with a red-coated ringmaster, clowns, a colorful flag-draped tent and many other attractions true to the traditions of the "big top" will be used to illustrate the importance of dental hygiene at the Illinois Conference on Public Welfare at Quincy, September 24-28.

This novel exhibit, known as the "Sells-Health-O Circus" is operated by the Mouth Hygiene Section of the State Department of Public Health and is hailed by school children wherever it is shown with enthusiasm rivaling that accorded a real circus.

The entrance to the circus is a tall canvas arch, decorated with colorful sketches of the wonders to be seen inside and surmounted by a mammoth tooth. Molars and bicuspids with clowns' faces adorn the outside of the flap. To one side is a dancing mechanical clown brandishing an armful of colored balloons, their surfaces painted with strange portraits which are caricatures of teeth suffering from decay and other defects.

Inside is a long row of stages on which various attractions appear. "Mr. Milk, the original skeleton man" because he builds good bones and teeth. "Mr. X. Er. Cise, almost extinct in this country due to automobiles, modern machinery and other improvements" and many other freaks contribute their share to the entertainment. These characters are impersonated by children. There is an orchestra and, to sight and sound, the "Sells Health-O Circus" wears the gala air of the time-honored circus.

The circus is part of a vigorous state-wide campaign for better teeth waged by the Mouth Hygiene Section of the State Department of Health. Dental clinics in every section of the State, an active speakers' bureau, work in normal schools and nurses' training schools as well as direct effort among children are phases of the department's work. All directed toward reducing the existing number of children with defective teeth now estimated at eighty-five percent of Illinois children.

The circus is one of many colorful and unusual exhibits to be seen at the Quincy conference. Every phase of public or private welfare work in Illinois will be covered by the displays.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Talent, qualitative and quantitative, has rallied to the aid of Coaches John W. Wilce of Ohio State and Burt Ingwerson of Iowa, who have been the targets of alumni criticism for their failure to turn out winning football teams during the 1927 season.

Eighty candidates responded to Wilce's call, while 60 turned out at Iowa for the initial practice of the 1928 season Saturday and the prospects in both camps were more than bright.

Dr. Wilce, who has announced his retirement next June to practice medicine, said he was going into his last season with the single interest of making it a success.

"Considerable criticism has been leveled at me during the past year, and this season I am going to give it every consideration as I try to whip up a winning eleven. My single interest is success and I believe my boys are with me and have the stuff in them to win."

Wilce's first move was to bar all spectators, except newspapermen, from the workouts. No reason was given for the order, which is usually withheld until late in the season or a day or two before a crucial contest.

The first line-up Saturday indicated the Buckeyes would have a powerful line and one of the fleetest backs in the Big Ten. Return of Eby, Cory, Kriss, Huston and Fouch, and other speedy backs; Leo Roskowski,

Among the Iowa candidates were 15 veterans and 28 freshmen numeral winners of 1927. Coach Ingwerson's greatest hope, however, rested on the brawny shoulders of Maves W. McLain, Indian fullback, who piled up 253 points in 13 games at the Haskell Institute in 1926. McLain, who weighs 210 pounds and stands six feet two inches tall, is a powerful driver and a fast broken field runner.

Coach Ingwerson, who has the support and confidence of the athletic department, has been pointing to his 1928 eleven as the answer to the criticism that broke with such fury last winter.

Morning and afternoon practice was resumed at all conference camps today.

DIXON PITCHER

Reddish Pitched 19
Innings to Take
Both Battles

The Dixon Independents scored a double win over the Milledgeville All-Stars here yesterday afternoon with Virgil Reddish pitching two of the best games of his career this summer and in which he worked 19 straight innings. The first game was a shut out for the visitors, the Independents winning by a 5 to 0 count. Reddish was pitching a great game and received fine support.

In the second game, Reddish again resumed his work on the mound and went along at top speed up to the eighth inning when three hits were bunched with two bad errors and the score was tied 3 to 3. The game went into extra innings and the Independents came out of a slump in the tenth. Rusk singled in the tenth, went to second on one of Bushman's wild heaves, and scored on Henry's line drive into deep right field.

In the first game, Rahn, a Mississippi Valley League southpaw, held the Independents to five scattered hits, but ragged support let in five runs. Reddish allowed but three hits in the first. His 19 innings of pitching is next to the record hung up by Bob Woodyatt more than 20 years ago, when he went 20 innings against Muscatine, Iowa.

After three poor starts, in which the best the Hoosiers could do was a 15-inning tie, the Tots yesterday trounced Decatur, 8 to 1. The fifth game was to be played here today.

Tots Back in Fight
Decatur, Ill., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The Terre Haute Tots were back on the championship trail today seeking a second victory over the Decatur Conies in the fifth game of their post-season series for the Three I League pennant.

HOOVER GOES EAST

Washington, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Herbert Hoover takes his campaign into the east today as his Democratic opponent, Alfred E. Smith, makes his first visit to the west.

The Republican presidential candidate goes to Newark to deliver the first of three addresses he will make on the ground where admittedly he has a fight. He will speak tonight at Newark, delivering his third prepared address, in which he will discuss labor.

Accompanied by Mrs. Hoover, the Republican standard-bearer will pass through New Jersey's principal cities before proceeding to the Oranges, Montclair and Menlo Park where Mr. and Mrs. Hoover will call upon Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, whose guests they will be tonight.

Tomorrow Hoover will visit a half a dozen cities in eastern New Jersey, including Jersey City, Hoboken and Weehawken. Returning then to Newark, he will attend a luncheon to be given by Senator Walter E. Edge to the New Jersey state and county leaders. After the luncheon he will motor to Trenton, passing through Elizabeth and Princeton.

Hoover plans two other speeches in the east, one in New York on October 17, and the other at Boston at a date yet to be determined.

Some animals have a different kind of blood from human beings. For instance, the red blood cells of a camel are nucleated, while human beings only have nucleated red cells in severe anemia and certain cases of blood diseases. By stretching the web of a frog's foot under the lens of a microscope, we can readily observe the circulation of the blood in the small blood vessels, showing millions of small cells that could easily be placed on the head of a pin. Most of the different cells causing disease are even smaller than blood cells and the progress that different medical laboratories are now making in blood chemistry indicates that this branch of medical science is one of the most important branches of study in diagnosing diseases.

A drop or two of blood will show some of the most amazing things known to medical science and in large numbers. Many of these can be seen under the microscope or by growing different organisms from the blood. Again there are many forms of disease manifest in the blood that can not be seen by the microscope which give the clue to diagnosis by their physical and chemical reaction. For instance, to see if a patient has typhoid fever a drop of blood is taken and if a certain peculiar reaction is secured, the diagnosis of typhoid fever is helped. This is known as the Widal reaction. Another blood specimen may show if one has syphilis, either inherited or acquired. This is known as the Wasserman reaction. So important are the various blood findings that almost all up-to-date hospitals have a thorough blood test made of all hospital patients and always with those desiring a physical examination.

If any one has diabetes, the blood test will show it, and what is more important it will show even if the person is only threatened with it. If any one is eating too many sweets, or has acidosis or alkalosis, his blood test will show that also. If malaria is suspected, a blood test will often show not only malaria, but the particular kind. In the same way the particular kind of germ causing blood poisoning is discovered.

How about your own blood? Have you ever had it examined? Have you ever had a physical examination made, or are you simply going to wait until something happens and then see what you can do about patching it up? Go and see your family doctor and talk things over. If he thinks you need a blood examination, he will tell you so.

House cleaning time will soon be here. Supply yourself with a roll of our nice white, pink, yellow or green paper for pantry shelves and bureau drawers. Nicely put up in rolls, 10 to 30 cents. B. F. Shaw Printing Co. 11*

The present library building of Congress represents an investment of between eight and nine million dollars.

Do you need letter heads? Let us print them. B. F. Shaw Printing Co. 11*

THIS HAS HAPPENED

SYBIL THORNE, reckless and lovely, has had ten wretched days of married life, swept off her feet by the passionate declarations of RICHARD EUSTIS, she married him after five days' acquaintance. They met on shipboard on the way to Cuba and were married by the ship's captain in Havana harbor. During the honeymoon Richard is alternately charming and repulsive. Sybil discovers that he is a confirmed drunkard and decides to leave him. She writes a note, telling him of her decision, and leaves their hotel to tell MABEL BLAKE what she has done.

Mabel Blake, a Boston social worker, was Sybil's companion on the voyage. To her great amazement she learns that Mabel has become engaged to an American whom she met in Havana. His name is JACK MOORE. When Sybil tells them of her determination to leave Richard, Moore and Mabel persuade her to give him another chance, and go with her back to the hotel. The girls wait in the lobby while Moore goes up to talk with Richard, who is recovering at the time from the terrible intoxication of the night before.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXI

JACK MOORE smiled benevolently, well pleased with his efforts.

"Well, well," he began, and rubbed his hands together with vast satisfaction, "our young friend is thoroughly ashamed of himself. I don't believe you'll have any more trouble with him, Sybil. The realization that you might leave him straightened him right out."

Sybil smiled—a strained, polite little smile.

"You've been awfully good, Jack."

"Will you go up now, dear?" prompted Mabel.

"Oh, I suppose so."

"And we'll see you in the morning."

RICH was pacing restlessly, up and down the big room. Snapping nervously in habitual fashion. His face flushed and his hair tossed.

Sybil thought his eyes were the brightest things she had ever seen. She stood silently in the doorway, feeling ridiculously more like a penitent than an outraged wife. He stopped her striding, and turned to face her.

"Well," she said, "here I am."

Exactly like that, and ragged within for sounding so humble.

"You're a nice girl—you are!"

Then she saw that he was angry.

"Running to Mabel and Moore with stories about your husband? Making a fool of me. Anybody'd think I'd been beating you. Sniveling and crying I suppose."

"Good Lord, who do you think you are? You're no little innocent, my lady. Not by a long shot. A woman of the world, if I ever knew one. Pulling a line, like a 16-year-old. Kicking up a rumpus because I've been drinking a little. How long, may I ask, has that been a sin in your calendar, Miss Virtue?"

He sank into a chair, and groaned aloud.

"There isn't a more miserable man in the world. Don't hate me, dear. You're all I have. I need you so."

He was pitiful. Like a little boy, worn out with temper, sobbing his remorse.

Tad was like that when he was small. She remembered his ungovernable rages, and the way he cried afterward, and promised to be good. And the sweet, pathetic little things he did to make amends. He was such a naughty boy—and so endearing. Their mother had been instantly forgiving. But she remembered how stern their father was.

"You'll never cure him that way," he had remonstrated. "A spanking would do him more good than kisses. It's wrong to coddle temper. Be firm with him, Mother. It's for his own good."

IT WAS hard to be firm with Rich—as hard as it had been for her mother to be firm with Tad. There was something very pathetic about Richard, promising to be good. Telling her he needed her. She felt like a wicked matron in an orphan asylum. But her decision this time was final.

"It's for his own good," she reflected. "He's got to stand on his own feet."

And steeling her heart to the hurt in his eyes, she spoke resolutely.

"I'm sorry, Rich. You can come over in the morning."

"Don't leave me, Sib."

He took a bottle from the window sill—behind the curtains, where she had not seen it—and poured himself a generous drink.

"I need it," he apologized. "I'll feel better for it."

She shuddered.

"That settles it, Rich. I'm going now."

"But you don't understand, dear. A little drink sets a fellow up. After he's had too much. The system craves it. It's only a stimulant. Sib—like medicine."

"Have it your own way," she conceded wearily. "Goodnight, Rich. Do you want to kiss me?"

"Kiss you?" he cried. "Of course I want to kiss you. I never want to do anything else! Ah, Sybil, dear, I'm crazy about you. You drive me insane, sweetheart."

His hungry lips devoured hers, and his arms held her close.

"You'll stay here with me, darling!"

"No, Rich."

"But, sweetheart . . ."

"Oh, Rich, let me go. This isn't fair, dear."

"'Fair!' It's wonderful!"

"Please, Rich!"

"Oh, all right. Anything you say. You're tired of me, Sybil. That's what's the matter. You want to be rid of me."

"You know that isn't true."

"Then why won't you stay here?"

"But, Rich, I've told you a hundred times."

"If you loved me, you'd stay."

"Oh, PLEASE don't argue."

"Well, I'll go, then. If you can't bear the sight of me, I'll go. You stay here."

"Oh, Rich, dear, be reasonable. I'm all ready to go. Your things are here. You CAN'T go very well. And I'll see you in the morning."

"You want to get rid of me—that's what you want. You don't ever intend to come back."

"I promise, Rich."

"Promise! What do your promises amount to? You promised Moore you'd come back to me. He said you'd. You're not keeping that promise, are you?"

"From the beginning, Rich," she told him patiently. "I've given in to you. Everything's been your way. And what good did it do? You'd promise and promise—and you never kept a promise. Now I'm going to have my way—and I'll see how it works. I'm going to the Ingle Terra, and I'll come back in the morning. Then . . ."

"For God's sake, stop barking," he interrupted fiercely. "I'm so sick I'd like to be dead, and you come and drive me crazy!"

He dragged his coat from the chair, struggled into the sleeves, and flung from the room, hatless.

(Sybil goes to the Ingle Terra—but returns to Richard, who has sinned the Unpardonable Sin.)

"I came back, Rich, because I thought I ought. I thought you needed me. I thought you would be sorry, and that we would start all over again."

you are still intoxicated that you are talking this way. Perhaps you WILL be sorry in the morning.

HOOVER GOES EAST

Washington, Sept. 17—(AP)—Herbert Hoover takes his campaign into the east today as his Democratic opponent, Alfred E. Smith, makes his first visit to the west.

The Republican presidential candidate goes to Newark to deliver the first of three addresses he will make on the ground where admittedly he has a fight. He will speak tonight at Newark, delivering his third prepared address, in which he will discuss labor.

Accompanied by Mrs. Hoover, the Republican standard-bearer will pass through New Jersey's principal cities before proceeding to the Oranges, Montclair and Menlo Park where Mr. and Mrs. Hoover will call upon Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, whose guests they will be tonight.

Tomorrow Hoover will visit a half a dozen cities in eastern New Jersey, including Jersey City, Hoboken and Weehawken. Returning then to Newark, he will attend a luncheon to be the New Jersey state and county leaders. After the luncheon he will motor to Trenton, passing through Elizabeth and Princeton.

Hoover plans two other speeches in the east, one in New York on October 17, and the other at Boston at a date yet to be determined.

Some animals have a different kind of blood from human beings. For instance, the red blood cells of a camel are nucleated, while human beings only have nucleated red cells in seed and anemia and serious cases of blood diseases. By stretching the web of a frog's foot under the lens of a microscope, we can readily observe the circulation of the blood in the small blood vessels, showing millions of small cells that could easily be placed on the head of a pin. Most of the different cells causing disease are even smaller than blood cells and the progress that different medical laboratories are now making in blood chemistry indicates that this branch of medical science is one of the most important branches of study in diagnosing diseases.

A drop or two of blood will show some of the most amazing things known to medical science and in large numbers. Many of these can be seen under the microscope or by growing different organisms from the blood. Again there are many forms of disease manifest in the blood that can not be seen by the microscope which give the clue to diagnosis by their physical and chemical reaction. For instance, to see if a patient has typhoid fever a drop of blood is taken and if a certain peculiar reaction is secured, the diagnosis of typhoid fever is helped. This is known as the Widal reaction. Another blood specimen may show if one has syphilis, either inherited or acquired. This is known as the Wasserman reaction. So important are the various blood findings that almost all up-to-date hospitals have a thorough blood made of all hospital patients and always with those desiring a physical examination.

If any one has diabetes, the blood test will show it, and what is more important it will show even if the person is only threatened with it. If any one is eating too many sweets, or has acidosis or alkalosis, his blood test will show that also. If malaria is suspected, a blood test will often show not only malaria, but the particular kind. In the same way the particular kind of germ causing blood poisoning is discovered.

How about your own blood? Have you ever had it examined? Have you ever had a physical examination made, or are you simply going to wait until something happens and then see what you can do about patching it up? Go and see your family doctor and talk things over. If he thinks you need a blood examination, he will tell you so.

WHIRLWIND ELEANOR EARLY

THIS HAS HAPPENED

SYBIL THORNE, reckless and lovely, has had ten wretched days of married life. Swept off her feet by the passionate declarations of RICHARD EUSTIS, she married him after five days' acquaintance. They met on shipboard on the way to Cuba and were married by the ship's captain in Havana harbor. During the honeymoon Richard is alternately charming and repulsive. Sybil discovers that he is a confirmed drunkard and decides to leave him. She writes a note, telling him of her decision, and leaves their hotel to tell MABEL BLAKE what she has done. Mabel Blake, a Boston social worker, was Sybil's companion on the voyage. To her great amazement she learns that Mabel has become engaged to an American whom she met in Havana. His name is JACK MOORE. When Sybil tells them of her determination to leave Richard, Moore and Mabel persuade her to give him another chance, and go with her back to the hotel. The girls wait in the lobby while Moore goes out to talk with Richard, who is recovering at the time from the terrible intoxication of the night before.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXI

JACK MOORE smiled benevolently, well pleased with his efforts.

"Well, well," he began, and rubbed his hands together with vast satisfaction, "our young friend is thoroughly ashamed of himself. I don't believe you'll have any more trouble with him, Sybil. The realization that you might leave him straightened him right out."

Sybil smiled—a strained, polite little smile.

"You've been awfully good, Jack."

"Will you go up now, dear?" prompted Mabel.

"Oh, I suppose so."

"And we'll see you in the morning."

RICH was pacing restlessly. Up and down the big room. Smoking nervously in habitual fashion. His face flushed and his hair tossed.

Sybil thought his eyes were the brightest things she had ever seen. She stood silently in the doorway, feeling ridiculously more like a penitent than an outraged wife. He stopped his striding, and turned to face her.

"Well," she said, "here I am."

Exactly like that, and ragged within for sounding so humble.

"You're a nice girl—you are!"

Then she saw that he was angry.

"Running to Mabel and Moore with stories about your husband? Making a fool of me. Anybody'd think I'd been beating you. Sniveling and crying I suppose."

"Good Lord, who do you think you are? You're no little innocent, my lady. Not by a long shot. A woman of the world, if I ever knew one. Pulling a line, like a 16-year-old. Kicking up a rumpus because I've been drinking a little. How long, may I ask, has that been a sin in your calendar, Miss Virtue?"

He sank into a chair, and groaned aloud.

"There isn't a more miserable man in the world. Don't hate me, dear. You're all I have. I need you so."

He was pitiful. Like a little boy, worn out with temper, sobbing his remorse.

Tad was like that when he was small. She remembered his ungovernable rages, and the way he cried afterward, and promised to be good. And the sweet, pathetic little things he did to make amends. He was such a naughty boy—and so endearing. Their mother had been instantly forgiving. But she remembered how stern their father was.

"You'll never cure him that way," he had remonstrated. "A spanking would do him more good than kisses. It's wrong to coddle temper. Be firm with him, Mother. It's for his own good."

IT WAS hard to be firm with Richard—as hard as it had been for her mother to be firm with Tad. There was something very pathetic about Richard, promising to be good. Telling her he needed her. She felt like a wicked matron in an orphan asylum. But her decision this time was final.

"It's for his own good," she reflected. "He's got to stand on his own feet."

And steeling her heart to the hurt in his eyes, she spoke resolutely.

"I'm sorry, Rich. You can come over in the morning."

"Don't leave me, Sib."

He took a bottle from the window sill—behind the curtains, where she had not seen it—and poured himself a generous drink.

"I need it," he apologized. "I'll feel better for it."

She shuddered.

"That settles it, Rich. I'm going now."

"But you don't understand, dear. A little drink sets a fellow up, after he's had too much. The system craves it. It's only a stimulant, Sib—like medicine."

"Have it your own way," she conceded wearily. "Goodnight, Rich. Do you want to kiss me?"

"Kiss you?" he cried. "Of course I want to kiss you. I never want to do anything else! Ah, Sybil, dear, I'm crazy about you. You drive me insane, sweetheart."

His hungry lips devoured hers, and his arms held her close.

"You'll stay here with me, darling!"

"No, Rich."

"But, sweetheart . . ."

"Oh, Rich, let me go. This isn't fair, dear."

"Fair! It's wonderful!"

"Please, Rich!"

"Oh, all right. Anything you say. You're tired of me, Sybil. That's what's the matter. You want to be rid of me."

"You know that isn't true."

"Then why won't you stay here?"

"But, Rich, I've told you a hundred times."

"If you loved me, you'd stay."

"Oh, PLEASE don't argue."

"Well, I'll go, then. If you can't bear the sight of me, I'll go. You stay here."

"Oh, Rich, dear, be reasonable. I'm all ready to go. Your things are here. You CAN'T go very well. And I'll see you in the morning."

"You want to get rid of me—that's what you want. You don't ever intend to come back."

"I promise, Rich."

"Promise! What do your promises amount to? You promised Moore you'd come back to me. He said you did. You're not keeping that promise, are you?"

"From the beginning, Rich," she told him patiently. "I've given in to you. Everything's been your way. And what good did

EPISCOPALEANS
TO HEAR CHURCH
IS FREE OF DEBT

Budget and Pay-as-Go
Policy Proves Its Effectiveness

"A Church free of debt", will be reported to the Forty-ninth Triennial General Convention of the Episcopal Church, meeting in Washington, D. C., October 10th by Lewis Franklin, Vice President and Treasurer of the National Council of that Communion. The report, which covers the past three years, shows that whereas $3,659,899.31 was spent by the national organization in 1925, closing the year with a deficit of $492,349.25, through the operation of the budget system and the pay-as-you-go policy, the latter installed that year, the expenditures in 1926 were $3,866,831.63 with a surplus of $62,989.81 and in 1927, expenditures of $3,741,802.50 with a surplus of $130,926.52. In past years recourse has been had to undesignated legacies to the Church to meet current expenses, but in 1926-27 such legacies amounting to $324,000 were devoted exclusively to work in the mission fields. Noting that these results show the best year in the financial history of the Church, Mr. Franklin sounds a warning that this serious damage to the work which is the chief reason for the Church's existence.

"The pay-as-you-go plan has been helpful", he says, "since it has kept us within the amounts the dioceses have advised the Council it might expect from them. The quotas assigned to the dioceses represent their fair share of the budget for the Church's need of the year. The total of what they fail to pay of these quotas under the pay-as-you-go policy must be cut out of the budget. That forestalls deficits, but it also results in serious injury to the Church's work. Last year $200,000 had to be cut from the budget, due to this failure of the dioceses to meet their full quotas. Under the pay-as-you-go plan we lay before the Church its imperative needs; if the membership thereafter does not wish to give to missionary work, it cannot go on."

The closing of one important educational institution in the South has been forced by these necessary cuts in the budget, and similar reductions have been forced in appropriations during the past two years for all of the missionary fields.

A striking feature of Mr. Franklin's report will be his discussion of the Church deficit of 1925. When the General Convention assembled in New Orleans three years ago it faced a deficit of $1,534,308. Led by Bishop Manning of New York, bishops and deputies rose in all parts of the hall where the Convention was in joint session and within two hours pledges were received from the various dioceses of amounts, aside from budget quotas, which assured the ultimate extinction of the deficit. In the intervening three years the progress in wiping out this deficit is described by Mr. Franklin as "one of the most successful campaigns ever undertaken by the Church. The success which has been achieved," he declares, "is due almost wholly to the energetic leadership of the bishops and other leaders. Except for the efforts of the Presiding Bishop and the Treasurer to keep the dioceses advised of the progress of the movement to wipe out the deficit, the National Council has done nothing. No organization has been created and practically no money has been spent. The only impelling force has been the assumption by the diocese of the responsibility and a real determination to meet that responsibility."

There is every expectation that the forthcoming convention will witness the complete wiping out of this accumulated debt of a million and a half.

At the Washington convention the Council will present to that body a maintenance budget for the next triennium of $4,350,000 per annum. It is also planned to raise an additional three million dollars for advance work during the next three years.

A newly-invented nozzle for a fire hose is so arranged that the fireman can divert the water from the main stream into a cascade which falls around him. He can thus place himself under an umbrella, as it were, of falling water, and escape through the smoke and flames of a burning room.

LIGHTS AND SHADOWS

If it isn't worry about one thing, it is worry about something else. A person who has acquired the habit of worrying usually imagines that his financial problems are more difficult than those of his friends, or that his family difficulties are more serious, or that his health is more impaired, when the truth is that most people who worry have no more difficult problems than any other person has to face.

The travel through life is a strange journey, and each day brings its new problems to solve. We all have our moments of happiness and our times of sorrow. Life is almost evenly divided between the lights and the shadows. Problems that seem the most difficult often have a peculiar method of solving themselves in the course of time.

When a person has two paths of conduct, and he is undecided which to take, he will usually find that either one of them would be suitable.

The two problems that cause the most worry are finances and family affairs. If you find yourself worrying about something, you should take an inventory of yourself. A careful analysis with a pencil on a piece of paper will usually point out the trouble if you are honest with yourself.

Most people try to live beyond their incomes. This is only a foolish pandering to vanity. Most people can control their expenses by making a few changes in their habits. You can enjoy a thirty-cent picture show as much as a three-dollar play, and a round steak at thirty-five cents a pound is really more tasty and wholesome than an expensive steak at twice the price.

It takes two to make a quarrel, and you will usually find that where you are having difficulty with some member of your family, you yourself are largely at fault. A little concession will often make things feel pleasant without costing anything. Worry and anxiety waste a terrible amount of energy, and so greatly imperil the functions of the body that serious diseases are often the consequence.

It is a good plan to give yourself affirmative suggestions before you go to sleep, such as the following: I am improving myself day by day; physically I am growing stronger, mentally I am increasing my knowledge and financially I am saving a little money. I am becoming contented with life and confident of myself. I feel friendly toward the world, and things which I considered difficulties are as interesting to solve as the problems of checkers or chess.

You can cultivate a calmness of mind by the Hindoo method of not emotionally reacting to unpleasant things. The actual thing that occurs is not nearly as important as the way we react to it. You can help yourself a great deal by using healthful affirmations, but you must also learn to cultivate health through dieting, exercising and proper mental attitude.

The emotions upon which the mind dwells become the strongest. QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS QUESTION—R. J. B. writes: "Am suffering from severe pain in my hip which at times is practically useless. It is two years now since it first affected me. Doctors say no disease, but mention a possible arthritis. I get slight relief from electrical treatment. Might say I was alright for six months previous to this last week. Would like to know if you can advise any treatment."

ANSWER—You should take the treatment I advise for the different forms of chronic rheumatism, outlined in a series of articles which I combine freely. Raisins, figs or any of the dried fruits added to a custard will give a sufficient sweet taste in place of the sugar commonly used.

QUESTION—Mary G. writes: "My chest—that part exposed where the dress is cut low—is always red, although sometimes I do not go outdoors in the sun for days. Do you think it is from nervousness or indigestion?"

ANSWER—When the skin is very red on the chest above the dress line it is sometimes an indication of the systemic acidosis caused by an over-acidity of the stomach, but of course sometimes it is only due to exposure because of the skin being thin and sensitive.

Birth of Party
Recalled by G. O.
P. Campaigners

The region which gave birth to the Republican party around Ripon, Wis., in 1854, is still strong in the faith, declared W. S. Guinter, one of the three members of the original Fairfield (Wis.) Martial Drum Corps which has campaigned for the Republican ticket in every election since the Civil War. Mr. Guinter visited western Republican headquarters today to renew his fealty to the party ticket.

"The campaigning of those days," said Mr. Guinter, "centered around the school houses and churches, which explains the meeting place of that little group which decided upon the birth of a new party at Ripon, which is just a short distance from my home. Scores of times the Fairfield Martial Drum Corps has taken part in campaigns in that little school house."

"There are only three left now of the original eleven, one fifer, Theodore Bennett, the bass drummer, Sylvester Belvel, and myself, one of the seven snare drummers."

"We met at one of those little school houses 57 years ago at about this time in the campaign, and organized the corps, when I was about 17 years old. We took part in campaigns not only all over Wisconsin, but all over the country."

"Campaign speeches and meetings of those days were more colorful than campaigning today. No political meeting was a success then without a drum corps, and ours rapidly became very popular for that reason. I fear that some of the enthusiasm of politics has gone with the passing of the torchlight parade and the drum corps."

"Perhaps this generation does just as well in its campaigns, under the difficulty of an immense increase in the number of voters, but I still believe that the enthusiasm of such personal participation in campaigning as was universal in my day would solve a great many of the 'bloo' problems of the party.

"Perhaps we campaigned more on issues than on personalities in those days, but it seems to me the voters generally were better informed on party principles and platforms and better able to discuss and debate the political problems of the day. I fear this generation has lost something of its personal interest in government because of the decline of the old-fashioned drum corps and torchlight parade. And that is something which should give our public leaders considerable concern."

"We need to draw more men into public life of the type of Herbert Hoover, capable business man, executive, of international experience, familiar with big commercial problems, a man who has won his own way with his hands and his brain from the far into the top of his profession."

"And the party also needs more followers of the old type who were staunch in the faith, who demanded and received capable leadership such as they will have in Hoover."

Mr. Guinter was in Chicago, born with the Republican party which had its beginnings a few miles from his birthplace in the year of his birth.

One of the first meetings of those who were bitterly opposed to the Kansas-Nebraska Bill then pending in congress, which would have made a further concession to the spread of slavery, was held in the Congregational church at Ripon, Wis., Feb. 28, 1854. A resolution was adopted pledging those present to sever their connections with the old political parties if the Kansas-Nebraska Bill were passed, and to organize a new one known as the Republican party. The bill passed the senate and Major Alvin E. Bovay called a second meeting in the school house at which a committee was appointed to start

Methodists Behind in Conference at Peoria

Peoria, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Behind in their scheduled business meeting, the Illinois Methodist Episcopal Conference plunged today into the seventh day's meeting today in an effort to clear the calendar for adjournment.

There was little likelihood, however, that the conference's business would be finished before late tomorrow. Prior to adjournment changes in pastors and District Superintendents will be announced.

Changes at Decatur and Bloomington were spoken of and several ministers have said they intend to leave the conference. The list of appointments is the major activity of the conference's cabinet sessions, held nightly with Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, of Chicago, presiding.

It is expected that in districts where changes, if any, are made, special meetings will be called after the conference.

In two addresses over the week end Dr. Burt E. Smith of Chicago, denounced the tendency of science to point out the thyroid gland as the seat of all criminal troubles and said that religion is the only cure of sin.
